MOVES MADE TO IMPROVE DARLINGTON POINT WATER

An ongoing review of water quality continues at Darlington Point.

This includes regular sampling and quality assessment of potable water at the Darlington Point water bore and a number of sampling points across the town.

The in-depth assessment is in response to concerns expressed last month by residents.

Murrumbidgee Council General Manager Craig Moffitt said progress was being made.

"Council officers continue to monitor the water quality and especially chlorine concentration that is in the lower range of acceptable levels," he said.

"We are in the process of procuring a gas chlorination injection system and discussing the installation of this system with a preferred supplier."

Council has held preliminary discussions with NSW Health and NSW Department of Primary Industries-Water, and in cooperation with them Council is looking at engaging suitably qualified consultants to undertake a full assessment of the water supply.

Council is complying with the best practice guidelines at all times and will continue to provide regular updates to the community on the progress made.
